THE YETI STORY

Brothers Roy and Ryan Seiders were born and raised in Driftwood, Texas where their father, Roger Seiders, instilled in them a love for the wild, taking them hunting and fishing, and encouraging time in the outdoors. Thanks to Roger, an avid fisherman and entrepreneur himself, a hands-on, never settle spirit runs deep in the DNA of our founders. He showed them the success that can come from solving a common problem in an innovative way – in his case it was with shellacs and varnishes for fishing rods.

As adults, Roy and Ryan applied this thinking to their own frustration with coolers that couldn't stand up to the demands of serious anglers, and that would ultimately cut their adventures and good times short.

In 2006, they founded YETI Coolers with a product built specifically for the serious outdoor enthusiast, and in 2008 YETI introduced exceptional durability and ice retention to the market, with the now-legendary Tundra® Hard Cooler. Professional anglers were quick to adopt it, rounding out their top-of-the-line arsenal of fishing gear. It wasn't long before the Tundra met more like-minded folks out west in the fly fishing, river rafting, and backcountry outfitter communities.

The brand has continued to grow and develop products on the principle of innovative design and rugged durability, making gear that enhances and extends your time in the wild.

Ryan Seiders rigged a plank of wood to an old cooler so it was strong enough to stand on while casting, which inspired him and his brother to create the first YETI Cooler.

SUSTAINABILITY AT THE OFFICE

A commitment to high-performing, durable, and reusable products is part of the original YETI story. Our founders were frustrated that their coolers would leak and break and needed to be replaced every season, or sooner. Food and ice would go to waste, and the cooler itself ended up in the garbage after only a few uses. Fast forward, YETI was created on a promise of reliability and durability with products that not only perform when you need them to but can support your company's efforts to reduce reliance on single-use products.

Set your workplace apart and lead by example; swap single-use plastic bottles and paper or foam cups with reusable drinkware.

- Cut costs, waste, and space: stock canteens and kitchenettes with customized Ramblers and Yonders.
- Delight and educate new employees: gift new-hires a personalized and commemorative reusable vessel.
- Lead by example: establish a loaner program branded with your sustainability mission for visitors and guests to use on-site.

Transition your office from costly single-use cups and bottles to durable drinkware for every, single use. Go a step further debut a loaner program by stocking the canteen, kitchens, conference rooms and beverage shops with insulated, dishwasher-safe branded drinkware.

Read more about YETI's commitments to Keep the wild, WILD at yeti.com/esg

*Environmental benefits depend on product use, care, and disposal. Reusable products typically reduce waste when used multiple times in place of single-use alternatives.

THE YETI “LOANER” PROGRAM

Together, we can make a big impact in eliminating plastic waste just by replacing in-office plastic bottles and disposable foam cups with reusable YETI® Drinkware that your employees can borrow while at work.

Your employees will appreciate that their coffee or tea is kept hot through busy mornings, and that their ice water doesn’t leave condensation messes on the desk and still keeps water ice cold. Keep a set of reusable dishwasher safe Rambler® Drinkware at the coffee shop and water cooler to encourage their use. Or even give them as gifts for new hires.
